John is an expert telegraph operator, and a good business man and will succeed well in his new position.

Dr. Beebe, of Milwaukee, has removed his office to 173 Wisconsin street. The Doctor is well and favorably known in Janesville, where he has many patients, all of whom speak very highly of the skillful treatment they have received from him. He recently successfully removed two cataracts at Passavant hospital, both parties being inmates of the National home, one having been blind three years and the other seven years.

Patsy Griffin, on Saturday evening, received a severe thrashing at the hands of a man named Broderick, near Bill Canary's place, at the depot. Patsy was taken to jail and laid out on a table, and surgical aid summoned. He was too drunk and stupid to receive much attention; but after his wounds about the head were cared for, he was laid out on a bench, where he lay all night and most of yesterday. He will remember this "scrap" for some time, as it seldom happens that Patsy comes out of a fight so badly punished.

Easter Services.

While the queen of religious festivals—Easter—was celebrated with more or less impressive services in Janesville, the church decorations were not as elaborate as in former years. The musical programmes were good, however, and sermons upon the resurrection, were preached in all the churches. At three o'clock in the afternoon special Easter festivals for the children were held in Christ Church and All Souls Church, and the same service was held in the evening at the First Methodist Church.

At three o'clock in the afternoon, the Knights Templar assembled in Masonic hall, and for the first time in Janesville, held special Easter services. The Knights appeared in full uniform, and the Rev. Thomas W. McLean, of Trinity church, conducted the service very much after the fashion of the Episcopal service. Prelate Fenner Kimball delivered a brief address to the Sir Knights which was admirably appropriate for the occasion. The choir of Trinity church, under the excellent leadership of Professor Titcomb, rendered the song service in a very interesting manner. By special invitation, a goodly number of ladies and gentlemen were present to enjoy this Easter service.

THE DAM.

The High Water of Saturday Carries the Dam away—An Immense Loss to the Manufacturing Interests of Janesville—The Action of the Water Power Owners.

As was predicted in the Gazette on Saturday, the dam across Rock river at this point was carried away in the evening of that day, incurring a severe blow to the manufacturing interests of Janesville. The dam is 280 feet wide, and of this about 160 feet have been washed out. Fears had been entertained for some time by the more thoughtful of the mill owners, that the dam stood in jeopardy, or ever since the extremely high water of last spring the dam had been weakening, and no practical scheme could be adopted that would save it from destruction. It has gone—completely gone—entailing a heavy loss not only upon the owners of the mill property but upon a large number of operatives. By this accident, the following establishments are silent to-day:

The cotton mill.

Barnes & Hodson's flour mill.

Shoppell & Norris' planing mill.

Janesville Furniture company.

The Bower City flour mill.

The Doty works.

Atwood & Lawrence's woolen mill.

Nearly all of these establishments will be compelled to suspend operations until the dam can be rebuilt. The cotton mill will probably start to-morrow, running a portion of the mill by steam. An additional boiler has been ordered from Chicago, and as soon as that is put in place, the entire factory will be run by steam until water can be used. Fortunately for Mr. Frank Stevens, his box factory is in operation to-day. He takes his power from Mr. Doty's feed mill, and as the latter has about a two-foot head after the wreck of the dam, he can utilize it in running the box factory and elevating his own grain, but cannot obtain sufficient power to operate the mill.

MEETING OF THE MILL OWNERS.

The mill owners held a meeting to-day, for the purpose of taking into consideration the question of rebuilding the dam. There was a full attendance, and harmony prevailed as to what action should be taken. It was decided without discussion to begin the work of rebuilding the dam at once, and to place the whole matter into the hands of Mr. John Watson. The difficult and responsible task of replacing the dam could not have been put under the charge of a more competent person. John Watson is a power at a time like this, and his utmost skill, and that means a great deal, will be put forth in the construction of the new dam. The mill owners organized a committee composed of F. S. Eldred, O. C. Ford and Charles Hodson, which will act as a committee on ways and means to provide Mr. Watson with the necessary money with which to rebuild the dam as early as possible. They will make assessments and attend generally to the financial management of the work. Operations will begin immediately, and it is hoped that in a month's time enough of the dam will be replaced so that some of the mills can be operated. The cost will probably not be less than $10,000 or $12,000. The loss to the city in consequence of the stoppage of the mills can hardly fall below $100,000.

The Late Mrs. Harriet H. Wilmarth.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Harriet H. Wilmarth, who died in Chicago, of malarial fever on the 6th instant, took place on Sunday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. Silas Hayner, in the First ward. The services were conducted by the Rev. Olin A. Curtis, of Court Street church, who delivered a most impressive and fitting discourse, paying the deceased a tribute which was well spoken and well deserved. He was assisted by the Rev. W. F. Brown, of the Presbyterian church. The music was rendered by Mrs. St. John, Miss Fannie Ray, Mr. C. N. Vankirk, and Mr. Clarence Clark. The pall-bearers were: Wilbur F. Carle, Hanley Sexton, Charles Dutton, N. O. Clark, George F. Lane, and Clark S. Barnham.

Harriet Hayner was born near Troy, New York, October 8, 1839; but in early childhood coming to Janesville with her parents, she spent here the larger part of her life. Here she attended school; here she became an active member of the M. E. church, singing in the choir, and in other ways working for the interests of the church; here she taught for two years successfully in the intermediate department of our public schools; and here she gathered about her friends many and true. Sixteen years ago last New Year's day, Harriet Hayner was married to Charles A. Wilmarth, of this city. Soon after marriage, they went to Sublette, Ill., where they lived, breaking their residence by a year's visit to Janesville, about five years in all. In Sublette, Mr. Wilmarth died, probably from the effects of a severe wound received in the late war. In all the years since her husband's death, Mrs. Wilmarth's life had been quiet but earnest and brave, and a constant effort to make life as valuable as possible to her two children.

Seven weeks ago she came to Janesville to attend the funeral of her sister, but returning to Chicago, she also, in one week, was stricken with malarial fever. Her last days were full of the same Christian patience and the same thoughtful care for others which she had ever shown in health. There was no ostentatious, but with the completest trust, she gave her own soul and all her motherly anxieties to God. Without many words she lived, without many words she died; but the silent heroism of her life only heaven can sufficiently honor.

There will be a full house to see Jane Coombs this evening.

Miss Cartland in Fanchon.

To-night the Cartland-Murray Combination will appear at Myers Opera house in that always popular play Fanchon, the Cricket. That it will be well produced is a certainty, so that those who attend this evening will witness one of the brightest performances seen in the Opera house for some time. The St. Joseph Daily Herald pays the following compliment to Miss Cartland's Fanchon:

Two performances of Fanchon were given at the Opera house yesterday, matinee and evening. Since the day Maggie Mitchell opened the Opera house with Fanchon until yesterday, the drama has not been as well produced on those boards. It is hard to overcome old prejudices and yield to new faces and innovations due credit, but last night we were forced to grant in many instances the palm of excellence to Miss Grace Cartland (who is but 22 years of age), and especially so in the pathetic lines. Her Fanchon is not the wild hoyden of Maggie Mitchell, but one more in harmony with the original story from which the play was dramatized, and one more calculated to make a lasting impression. The support is good. Mr. Murray is a comedian of unusual merit. The orchestra is among the best that has visited the city, and hard to excel anywhere.
